History of the Installation

During World War II, Fleet Admiral Ernest King, chief of naval operations and commander-in-chief of both the Atlantic and Pacific fleets, established a commission to review the role of graduate education in the Navy. By the end of the war, it had become apparent that the facilities of the Naval Postgraduate School at the Naval Academy at Annapolis would be insufficient for the Navy's future needs.

In 1945, Congress passed legislation to make the school a fully-accredited, degree-granting graduate institution. Two years later, Congress authorized the purchase of the Hotel Del Monte and 627 acres of surrounding land for use as an independent campus for the school.

The main building of the former Hotel Del Monte - now named Herrmann Hall - houses a grand ballroom, Navy Gateway Inns and Suites hotel rooms, and the principal administrative offices of the Naval Postgraduate School. Herrmann Hall, and other historic buildings throughout the installation, are continuously renovated and refurbished to preserve the installation's early 20th century charm as tribute to its historic past.
